She works with clients at all stages of career - from new grads through executives. She has a specialty in, and a particular passion for, helping women return to paid employment after being away from the workplace raising children, caring for family members, or supporting a spouse's career during expat assignments.

Carol makes it one of her top priorities to continually expand and deepen her knowledge of trends, ever-evolving best practices, and new insights on the employment landscape and positive psychology, in order to better help her clients. In addition to the two existing divisions of her consulting business, Carol is soon launching an online training platform that will provide women with a new way to work with her, at their own pace and at a cost savings.

Carol loves what she gets to do: to help people achieve their goals, land jobs, earn economic self-sufficiency, and make a difference in our world. She speaks to groups at conferences, community events, and through webinars and online presentations. She has been quoted in Forbes, is a board member of the National Resume Writers' Association, an associate of the Career Thought Leaders Consortium, and a member of Career Directors International. Her community volunteer work includes serving as a Court Appointed Special Advocate and as a board member in her new community's newcomer's club.

Carol Camerino is a Past President of the Toronto Newcomer's Club (TNC). She and her husband lived in Toronto for the better part of three years before returning to the US.

Carol's talk at the 2017 NNAC Conference in Toronto will be on the topic of motivation, setting goals, being positive, and dealing with change. The break-out session that she is hosting will focus on individual goals.

A Quote from Carol Camerino:

"I am DELIGHTED to be participating in the National Newcomers Association of Canada conference!! My amazing time as an expat in Toronto was defined by my TNC connections. The role you all play is truly incalculable. You are impacting your family, your friends – old and new – your communities, and more. I can't wait to be together to celebrate you and explore, learn, and share!," says Carol.
